ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus, including computer program products, for a microinstruction pointer stack in a processor. A method executed in a processor includes executing microcode (μcode) addressed by pointers stored in an out-of-order microinstruction pointer (μIP) stack, and manipulating the μIP stack with a set of microinstructions.